Poetry Reading

Joe Silken, English poet and co-editor of Stand, the English literary magazine, will read from his work on Thursday, Dec. 2, at noon in the Hale Bldg. Lounge.

He started Stand when he was twenty - one in 1951; sold it as a hawk in coffee houses and pubs throughout the Country; and published the works of Americans and Eastern Europeans for the British audience in the Magazine.

His Poems New and Selected was published by Wesleyan University Press and his Nature With Man won the Geoffrey Faber Memorial Prize for 1966.

Rabbit Redux

If you want to read some lively writing and incisive commentary on the new Updike novel, get a back copy of the Sunday Herald-Traveler Review of Nov. 14 by Shaun O'Connell (English). As a critic of the critic - a one-word review: "Beautiful".

Just Asking

Has anyone in the English or History Departments any notion of where Edgar Allen Poe was really born? Was it at the site of the house with the plaque on Fayette St. around the corner? Or do theatre arts historians have a clue on the matter, since his father had a Boston theatrical engagement at the time of his nativity?

Collaboration

Louis (Theatre Arts) and Maria-Luisa (Spanish) Roberts are quite involved in the University's production of "Divine Words" next month. Louis is directing the play and with his wife Maria - Luisa translated the Spanish tragicomedy this summer.

Courier Run

The only courier run to Amherst this week will be on Wednesday morning. There will be no trip today (Tues.)

Absentee Reports

Department secretaries are requested to submit the absentee reports for the week of Nov. 21-27 on Wed., Nov. 24.

Last week's Bulletin gives details on the Friday, Nov. 26, work schedule and the regulations on Holiday pay when there is absenteeism preceding or following a Holiday.

News for the Bulletin should be submitted to the Public Relations Office, 1-1221B. Expecially needed are items on faculty publications, awards & involvement in community affairs.
