A Sophomore and Christmas

Robert F. Dwyer is a sophomore who lives at Columbia Point and some day expects to be a member of the medical profession.

If concern for humanity is one criteria for being a good doctor, Dwyer is showing evidence already.

For Christmas, for the elderly, the tired, the poor from the Columbia Point and the Mary Ellen McCormack Housing Projects, Dwyer is hoping to provide a holiday dinner that they will remember.

He already did it at Thanksgiving, with the help of friends and neighbors and an old Bostonian, Stanley Blinstrub.

They renewed a Boston Tradition, started by the late Cardinal Cushing and Blinstrub, by being hosts to about 150 men and women from the housing developments.

Dwyer raised funds; the Baron of the Bistros matched them. Some old folks had a memorable time.

If young Mr. Dwyer happens to advertise his Christmas fund campaign, we hope this will give you an advisory of what it's all about.

College III Dean Search Committee

Today and tomorrow (Dec. 7 and 8) several prospective candidates for Dean of College III will be on campus, and members of the University community are cordially invited to meet them at a reception in the Chancellor's office between 4:15 and 6 p. m. on both days. All interested faculty and staff are encouraged to attend.

How Do You Rate This One?

The Lowell Sun editorial writer put it this way: The latest campus craze is--study. He bases this on some statistics on library attendance at a couple of campuses and speculates, according to some students, that they do not have the knowledge or the power to change things and some "have decided to obtain that knowledge which is the real basis for the power to change things."

So you ask Molly Matson (Reference Librarian) if there is an increase or normal use of the library reading room this year. Molly gives an instant answer. "The use of the library is definitely up this year."

Everyone keeping a budget knows you want to get as much out of a dollar as you possibly can.

Business Manager Thor Olson moves to the head of the UMB list in this regard because the telephone and postage bills here are extensive--and expensive.

So he has some advice for his fellow taxpayers:

1. Limit toll calls to those that are essential.
2. Use mails instead of phones when possible.
3. Reduction of personal phone calls will save the University at least 10 cents a call.
4. Use 2d and 3d class mail when applicable.
5. Air Mail. Use it only when absolutely necessary. Average international air mail is 42 cents an ounce.
6. Mass Mailings. You must have names, addresses and zips correct or it will be undeliverable and wasteful.
7. Mail reprints and magazines as "Printed Matter." It's less costly.

Savings of this kind will help make money available for more needed supplies and services.

Art Gallery

The Tom Shooter art exhibit in the Art Gallery (Main Building) will be there until December 23. Shooter is an alumnus of the Boston Museum School, winner of the Page Fellowship from the Museum of Fine Arts, and his work has been shown in Europe and throughout the United States. He is also represented at the Institute of Contemporary Art.

President's Committee on the Future University of Massachusetts Report

The University Senate has started to distribute copies of the Report to faculty, staff, and students. If you have not obtained a copy, call the Public Relations Office at X 375.

The public release of the Report on December 1 is the beginning of campus discussions, President Wood said, on the various aspects of the recommendations by the Committee.

Thinking Ahead

Atty. Gen. Robert Quinn, who resides in the district of the new campus in Dorchester, and his wife have announced the birth of their fourth child. The parents are now in receipt of an Admissions Office application for the Class of 1994.

Faculty Advisors:
Graduate Studies

Primo Vannicelli (Advising and Politics) requests faculty advisors to bring to the attention of their students many and diverse graduate opportunities.

Connecticut College has fellowships and assistantships available for M. A. Ed. and M. A. T. programs. Fordham University offers the same.

Other programs are the New York City Fellowship in urban government; Wellesley College has a number of scholarships for study in music, art, medicine, and overseas study programs; the Department of Housing and Urban Development has fellowships for students planning to do graduate work in city and regional planning and related fields.

Prof. Vannicelli's office at Sawyer 442 also lists a number of other opportunities in business administration, law, programs for seniors of Scottish descent and many more. Students should be apprised of these opportunities.

News items may be sent to the Public Relations Office
