Violence Essay

The Cause of Violence

Violence! What is it? What cause violence? Well it is all started with anger, hatred, and the action start from then. There are so many type of violence in this world such as gang, terrorism, school/bullies, war, and much more. Can you imagine if one day we would all live in peace? where everybody can be who they are and be treated the same? This might seem impossible but lets hope one day this day will come to us.

For some reason, many people are not being themselves when they're in public. They're always trying to be somebody else. Some ~~one~~ that will fit in with a group of friends, or anybody that doesn't like them when they're trying to be themselves. Same with the bullies, the only reason that people get bullied because the people the bullies them knows the fact that they won't do anything about it. Some of them might even join a gang to act up against others.

Most of the gangs became terrorist, Terrorist would cause violence directed against innocent defenseless people in an attempt to destabilize a nation politically. Their action may involve bombing, suicide attacks, Rocket and mortar attacks, Aircraft attacks, hijacks and much more. All of these attacks would kill thousands of people. Which also lead up to wars and destruction.

Violence Essay

Violence, what is it? What cause violence? Well it is all started with anger, hatred and the desire to hurt. There are so many types of violence in the world but as a group, terrorism (which will be discussed) is much more. You imagine it one day in the world all the violence, which everybody can do, that there can be feared the cause? This may seem impossible but let's hope one day the day when violence is...

For some reason many people are not very violent. There is a logic there, always trying to be some body else's. Some one that will be in with a group of friends. It is that doesn't like them when there is some trouble. They don't come with the police. The only reason that they will fight because the people the police then know the fact that they want to say anything about it, some of them might see you a gang to get up against others.

Most of the gangs become violent, but it would cause violence directed against innocent bystanders. People can attempt to avoid having a violent fight. It is better to avoid violence. People should not get into a fight and better attacks. All of these attacks will be the cause of people. When they lead up to violence and destruction.

This show that just a little hate and anger can cause such violence and tragedy. One thing lead up to another. Gangs, terrorism, wars, is all caused by hatred. If everybody is happy with everything and nobody hate anybody then all of these thing wouldn't happen. Making the right decision is the most important recipe of life.

Life can be better if you choose to make it better. It is all about doing the right thing. Violence can be hard to avoid but it's only matters of how you face it. Being happy is the key.
