Community Task Force Draft

In the January 16 Bulletin it was reported that the Dorchester-Columbia Point Task Force, comprising some twenty-six community organizations, had issued the draft of their study on the impact of housing on the community due to the opening of the University's Campus in Dorchester. Acting Chancellor Hamilton's remarks on the receipt of the study were published, stating that the report would be "faithfully studied by all of our University constituencies."

The first step in this procedure is a proposal by Dr. Hamilton to Prof. Alfred Ferguson (English), Faculty Co-Chairman of the University Assembly, that a Joint University Task Force of about thirty members would be named to study and respond to the one hundred and fifty page community report. The Task Force would have membership by students, faculty, and administration. Following our recommendations, a Campus Report will be submitted to the President and to the Trustees of the University.

State Reorganization

The daily media have devoted much time and space to proposals by the Secretaries of various state agencies which would reorganize state services. Secretary of Educational Affairs Joseph Cronin's proposed organization plan, submitted to the Legislature, is a sixty-page document. His proposal is now being studied by appropriate University officials and other leaders in higher as well as secondary and primary education.

Press reports indicate that if the entire organization plan -- welfare, public works, education, human services, etc. -- were to be adopted it would mean that some 4,533 job layoffs would be called for in the first year of reorganization.

For UMass-Boston, which is in a growth situation, the personnel cutbacks will not take place.

Massachusetts Legislators Conference

The University of Massachusetts and the Legislative Research Bureau sponsored an interesting two-day conference on the campus last week. Attending were freshmen legislators throughout the state who heard from the Legislative leadership and Directors of the Legislative Services on how the new members could more effectively serve their districts. The conference was organized by Joseph Cass - President's Office - and Daniel M. O'Sullivan, Director of the Legislative Research Bureau. Dr. William R. Hamilton, Jr., addressed the assembly at their Wednesday evening meeting.

Biology Seminars

The first in a series of weekly seminars sponsored by the Biology Department will be held Thursday, February 1, at 12:30 in Room 1-406. Jane Menge a Harvard graduate student, will give the first lecture, entitled "Resource Allocation Between Two Competing Starfish." Everyone is welcome.

Urban and Political Sociology

Prof. Richard Robbins (Sociology) recently gave the Miriam Lee Tropp Lecture at Wheaton College, where he taught for nine years before coming to UMass-Boston. Prof. Robbins spoke on "The Jewish Voter, Ethnic Blocs, and American Elections." The burden of that lecture was that the so-called defection of Jewish voters from the Democratic Party in 1972 was probably temporary and not decisive, and that, more generally, "ethnic bloc votes" have been more complex and more subject to short-run change than political folklore holds.

At a Cambridge Forum speech, he asked "Can Radical Sociology Reform America?"

Mathematics and Curriculum Planning

Dr. John A. Lutts (Mathematics I) has been involved in discussions with two-year colleges on the problems involved in mathematics and curriculum planning that are related to transferring from two-year colleges to a four-year college or university. The Massachusetts Mathematics Association of Two - Year Colleges held a symposium at UMass-Amherst where Prof. Lutts was a participant.

MUCH QUICKER COPIES THROUGH A NEW UNIVERSITY TIME- SAVING SERVICE

On February 5th, a new offset copy system will be installed in Central Duplicating for the benefit of colleges and departments. This system is completely automated from entry of typed copy through the completed, collated final product. It consists of an offset duplicator with a platemaker and a collator operating on line. Production time can be cut by as much as 90%, depending on the type of job. It is ideal for reproducing between two and 100 originals for five to 100 copies. One caveat is in order; only flat originals can be used on this system. Copies to be made from books will be expedited by making one Xerox copy of book pages before submission to Central Duplicating, Tom Curran (Ext. 535). Please call for more particular information on this process. We'll be looking for you on the first Monday in February.
