Ready for Classes

Let us help one another.

This week and next are most critical in the pre-opening phase of the second semester.

Many new people appear on campus daily. Kindly give them every assistance you can in locating the areas they wish to transact their business.

Although we do not regard the prose in the Bulletin as deathless, we ask that Departmental secretaries retain this issue, especially for information about the location of various offices.

Therefore, we repeat last week's roster of office locations:

Media Director

Dr. Gunther Weil has been named Director of the Media Center at UMass-Boston and brings to the position a creative capacity for exciting utilization of the media equipment which will enhance the teaching mission of our university.

Although production of educational materials is a most important aspect of the Media Center, Dr. Weil points out that the first priority will be promoting a really effective Audio Visual system operation to service the needs of the colleges.

"I hope in time to build on that foundation and develop a first-rate production facility. There is a wonderful opportunity for university-wide academic and administrative synergy around the functions," he said. "We will have to take matters a step-at-a-time, and I fully expect to spend the bulk of the first year on the problem of AV systems delivery."

Gunther Weil has been President of Intermedia Recording Corporation and Corporate Vice-President of Intermedia Systems Corporation.

Dr. Weil has served as a consultant in media program development and problem solving for a number of educational and industrial organizations including the Peace Corps, the Education Development Center, the Federal Aviation Agency, Synetics, Inc. and the Organization for Social and Technological Innovation. He has also conducted workshops in creative problem-solving at the Esalen Institute, Synergia, Inc. (Canada), the Aureon Institute, and the Mid-west Center for Human Potential.

Dr. Weil is the author of several articles and papers on the social and environmental determinants of personal and educational change.

Dr. Weil has taught at Harvard University, Brandeis University, and Boston College in the Social Psychology Departments. He introduced and taught new programs such as the psychology of media and the psychology of creativity.

Dr. Weil received a B. A. with high honors in Philosophy from Kenyon College. From 1959 to 1964 he was the recipient of the following fellowships and awards: Fullbright Fellowship, the National Woodrow Wilson Fellowship and the United States Public Health Research Fellowship. He holds a Ph. D. in Social Psychology from Harvard University.

Transportation

Starting January 21st, the Hudson Bus Company buses will begin their routes between Columbia MBTA Station and the new campus.

At the present time, shuttle services are as follows:

Between 7 a. m. and 9 a. m., two vans will shuttle between the new campus and the Columbia MBTA station.

From 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. one 12-passenger van and one 20-passenger bus (recently obtained) will provide shuttle service between the Park Square campus and the new campus. A vehicle will leave each point on the hour and the half hour. It must be noted that this service is not for personal affairs, but for business transactions between the two campuses.

Other services: a 12-passenger van will provide linkage between the campus and the Columbia MBTA station every 15 minutes during the day. This service between 4 p. m. and 5:30 p. m. will be increased by the use of a second van. Departure point is from the Garage-One Level at the Administration Building.
