Fiction Story

Have you ever been in a situation that involves violence? I have not been in a situation that involves violence but I have seen it. When I have seen violence it affects me because when I see it I want to put a stop to it but then I think to myself "No I can't because then I will have problems with that person that's arguing with the other person". So I decide to stay quiet when seeing violence that's happening at that point. I have a friend named Franchesca, and her parents get into many fights. Most of the times when I go to Franchesca's house they will be arguing. One day after school my mom was not home so I decided to go to Franchesca's house while my mom will get back home. When I got there Franchesca's parents were fighting. They were fighting because Franchesca's mom thought that her husband which is Franchesca's dad was cheating on her with another women. She found the evidence to prove her claim. Recently the past days she found light brown hair on his jacket. Which meant that he will be seeing the other girl. After Franchesca's mom told him everything he slapped him across his face. He got so mad he started pulling her hair, punching her. They got into a physical fight, and it kept on going and going. Franchesca started to cry. She told me she wanted to die, and she also told me that she wanted to run away. The past 5 minutes she ran out the door crying. I went after her, and caught up to her. I told her why she ran out the door. She told me that she was tired of how many times they will argue and the dad will abuse Franchesca's mom. I told her to relax and go to my house. When we got to my house I told my mom everything. So my mom decided to call the police. When the police came, the police took the dad for all the times that Franchesca's dad will abuse Franchesca's mother. Later on that week there was no longer violence in the house, Franchesca's mother will deal with or that Franchesca will see. Franchesca's mom was really happy to see her daughter that she was sad like before.

Youth violence is caused when people talk behind other peoples back but later on that person finds out and they get caught. Believe it or not boys that are sneaker boys fight over shoes. My 20 year old brother got jumped with my 23 year old brother. They got jumped because one of the other kids thought that my 23 year old brother will flirt with his girl. My 23 year old brother got stabbed in the stomach and my 20 year old brother got cut on his forehead and on his risk that he had to get stitches. Thank god they are ok. Like people these days fight over things that they are not even important. They fight for things that they don't even have reasons. People need to grow up! There should be a way to stop violence in the world because then there are consequences. I think there should be classes at school about violence because students are the most that get into any type of fights. I think that there should be polices that gives advice to all students and adults about violence. To tell them not to get into problems involving violence because after there will be consequences. The less violence there is on earth, the more peace there will be.
