NERCHE Think Tanks: Call for Nominations

NERCHE is accepting nominations for membership in its Think Tanks for administrators in New England for the 2008-2009 academic year. Since 1988, NERCHE has convened Think Tanks for administrators and faculty representing the diversity of colleges and universities in New England. The Think Tanks embody the essence of NERCHE's work—collaboration, diversity, and scholarship rooted in practice. Participants are nominated and selected because of their reputations for leadership, creativity, and interest in establishing collegial networks beyond their institutions. The Think Tanks serve not only as a venue for exchanging information and resources, but also as a forum for translating theory into practice as members draw policy implications from their discussions. On February 26-27, 2008, NERCHE and the Kettering Foundation co-hosted an invitational Colloquium in Dayton, OH, focused on the theme of "Democracy and Higher Education: The Future of Engagement." The primary purpose of the Colloquium was to provide a forum in which a group of 33 leaders in civic engagement and higher education came together to identify problems and issues associated with reforming higher education for community engagement and democratic citizenship, and to provide intellectual leadership for the next generation of engaged scholars in American higher education. Project Compass hosts Learning Community Meeting in Nashua, NH

Project Compass is a regional initiative supporting four-year public institutions to develop institutional strategies for increasing retention of underserved students, including students of color, first-generation college students, and those from low-income backgrounds. As the intermediary for the Nellie Mae Education Foundation, NERCHE organized the project's second learning community meeting (February 15-16), an opportunity for the six institutions funded for an initial planning year to convene and develop their retention initiatives. Glenn Gabbard, Project Director, welcomed the six "communities of practice," representing Bridgewater State College, Bridgewater MA; Eastern Connecticut State University, Willimantic, CT; Lyndon State College, Lyndonville, VT; University of Maine at Presque Isle, ME; University of Massachusetts, Boston; and Western Connecticut State University, Danbury CT.

NERCHE's Associate Director participates in national strategy institute

As a data facilitator for the Achieving the Dream initiative, Glenn Gabbard, NERCHE's Associate Director, participated in a national strategy institute in Atlanta in early February. This national effort supports participating community colleges from over 20 states intending to narrow achievement gaps for students of color and those from low-income backgrounds.
