SNOW

The work schedule for faculty and staff during winter weather is the same as other periods of the year.

It is the responsibility of each member to report to their assigned duties despite inclement weather.

Although in exceptional conditions there may be radio announcements cancelling scheduled classes for students, this does not apply to those other than students.

If and when there is a storm of emergency conditions in which State or City of Boston authorities will not permit travel into Boston, University personnel are expected to comply with that mandate.

Holiday Work Guides

When a holiday--such as Christmas and New Years's Day--falls on a Saturday the State policy is to provide, whenever possible, that the preceding Friday is a day off.

The Personnel Office suggests that as many employees as possible be given the days off, but it should be kept in mind that offices must remain open to the public on those days.

Employees assigned to work on those days should be given an additional day off or an additional day's pay in accordance with existing university policy.

Payroll checks will be distributed on Thursday preceding the holidays at the regular time.

Riding The Storm

Arnold Beichman (Politics) urbanely reviews former Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's new book about three years in a colorful political career. Beichman gives the book a plus rating, calling it "literature, amusing, irreverant...and full of delightful asides." The review was published in the Christian Science Monitor.

Columbia Point
Transit Line
Bill Filed

A bill has been filed with the Legislature which would provide funds for the construction of a transit line from Columbia Station of the MBTA and the Columbia Point Campus. The bill would also provide for whatever land acquisition is necessary. The MBTA would be deeply involved in the proposals and plans for the transit line.

The Federal Government has provided a grant to the MBTA to make a feasibility study for such a line.
