University Year for Action

The ACTION program is conducting an intensive recruitment drive for the enrollment of some seventy-five students for next year's program, providing that ACTION funds are available. Joanne Ross, Director of the Program, advises students they must also pre-register for courses they would take if ACTION is not operating next year. Applications and references are due by March 28.

Students this year are serving in seven areas: Corrections, Day Care and Children's Services, Economic Development, Education, Law and Government, Senior Citizens, and Social Services and Mental Health.

When the applicants to the program are selected, they must also receive Departmental approval for participation.

Reb Butler's Memoirs

Robert Steamer (Politics II) in the Boston Globe, March 4, was the reviewer of "The Art of the Possible: The Memoirs of Lord Butler." Lord Butler served for 36 years in some of Great Britain's most sensitive and powerful posts, including assignments in the Foreign Office, Exchequer, the Home Office, and the Board of Education. He acted as head of the government during Winston Churchill's 1953 illness. Steamer rates the book a "positive delight" because it more than chronicles the times but carries his personal judgment on men and events. The men and events of Butler's time are, indeed, important in the ebb and flow of Britain's destinies.
