Do the Write Thing Essay

There are many ways that violence can happen. These ways are from anger, gangs, and social media. These are not all of the ways that violence can occur. But there are ways that violence can be solved and people can achieve the American Dream. Bullying is a big type of violence it happens at school, and on the internet. This is called cyber bullying and the biggest type of bullying in my opinion. Here are the ways that violence can happen, and be solved.

Anger is a really big reason for violence. People could be mad at other people, their parents, or even their life style. Jealousy is a big reason for violence; people could be jealous of clothing and decide to steal somebody's clothes, that is an act of violence. Being mad at your parents is an example of other people but not jealousy. Being mad at your parents can also lead to violence; you could rebel your parents and start to jump people, and become friends with the wrong people. But that can be solved with counseling. The way that somebody's lifestyle could be could lead to violence. If somebody lives in a neighborhood that has a lot of violence they may be prone to get into that violence. But people can avoid this by taking advantage of public education and not getting into that violence.

Gangs can have a big impact on a community. The biggest way that gangs can impact a community is the violence. Gangs are influential because of their bad behavior and mannerisms could rub off on people. Gangs can become non influential when they no longer exist. Taking gangs off the streets will reduce the amount of violence, because there won't be as many bad influences as there were before. To elaborate taking gangs off of the street will take guns away from bad guys and take the bad guys off of the streets to keep children safe; in their neighborhoods where they should feel safe. Taking gangs off the street is a good thing because it can help children and regular people reach the American Dream, and not force them to live the American Nightmare. That is my thought of taking gangs off the street.

Cyber bullying is also another act of violence. Cyber bullying isn't physically violent but it can lead to violence. When somebody is bullied over the internet it could get them very mad. Also this could lead to the person being bullied to act in physical violence. Cyber bullying has to be stopped because then there would be a decline of violence and bullying. Cyber bullying can have a huge impact on a persons thoughts for example somebody could become self conscience about themselves because of what other people say. To help solve these things like cyber bullying parents could discipline their children, and people shouldn't care what others think they should only care about how they think of themselves. That is my bid on how cyber bullying is a form of violence and how it could be reduced, and abolished.

In conclusion any form of violence should become a small problem; not the enormous problem it is today. Anger is a path to violence because of jealousy, their parents, and the way they live. Gangs are by far a big part of violence that is why they should be taken off of the streets. Cyber Bullying is a type of bullying; but could also lead to violence. Those are my thoughts on why violence, and bullying should become small problems.
