Introducing CONNECTION: New England's Journal Of Higher Education

*What do Mike Dukakis,
An Wang and
Norma Foreman Glasgow have in common?*

They read Connection: New England's Journal of Higher Education. So do Madeleine Kunin, Claiborne Pell, Jean Mayer, Joseph Brennan, Ray Stata, John Sununu and 15,000 other influential New Englanders.

What else do our region's decisionmakers have in common? They're well-informed on important higher-education issues. Connection: New England's Journal of Higher Education keeps pace with new developments. It's a bold, enterprising, thought-provoking quarterly journal that believes higher education is vital to New England's economic development.

Connection reports on:

- | | |
|---|--|
| ■ Tax reform | ■ Labor supply and demand |
| ■ Research and development | ■ Cities on the move |
| ■ People and appointments | ■ Demographic changes |
| ■ New academic initiatives | ■ Student aid |
| ■ Individuals and companies doing tomorrow's work today | ■ Significant innovations and partnerships |

Education is New England's future. Connection is its voice.

Join those who stay in touch with the pulse of New England. Subscribe to Connection ($12/4 issues) now. You'll receive timely information on regional higher education, business and government—plus our special annual "FACTS" issue, with key data on every New England educational institution.

Guidelines for Contributors

1. Approximate length of article text should be seven thousand to twelve thousand words—about twenty-four to forty pages, double-spaced at three hundred words per page. Article length should not include figures, tables, endnotes, or references.
2. Each figure and table should appear on a separate page, with a source note for each. The text should indicate where each one should be inserted.
3. Charts, unless absolutely necessary, should be avoided. If they are included, follow procedure in 2.
4. The abstract should appear under that heading, also on a separate page, preceding the text of the article, double-spaced. Approximate length should be 150 words.
5. The author should provide a one- or two-sentence description of his or her work, to appear at the bottom of page 1 of the article.
6. If the methodology needs a theoretical explanation, it should be given under the heading Methodology on separate pages, also double-spaced.
7. Endnotes and references should appear on separate pages under the headings Notes and Bibliography, respectively, and should be double-spaced. Mathematical formulations, where possible, should be included under Notes. Endnotes should be set out in sequential order; references in alphabetical order. Publication data should include full names or initials plus name of author or editor, compiler, etc.; full title of work; city of publication; name of publisher; year of publication; and (for endnotes) pertinent page number(s); or full title of journal article; full name of journal; specification of journal issue (volume number, issue number, date); and pertinent page number(s). Examples follow of (1) an endnote for a selection from a book; (2) an endnote for a selection from a journal article; and (3) a reference:
 1. Robert Frost, "The Gift Outright," in The Poetry of Robert Frost, ed. Edward Connery Lathem (New York: Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 1975), 348.
 2. Shaun O'Connell, "The Infrequent Family: In Search of Boston's Literary Community," Boston Magazine 67, no. 1 (January 1975): 44-47, 66-68, 85-87.
 3. Larabee, Leonard W., Ralph L. Ketcham, Helen C. Boatfield, and Helene H. Fineman, eds. The Autobiography of Benjamin Franklin. New Haven and London: Yale University Press, 1964.
8. Manuscripts and queries should be addressed to
